How to Set Up Google Pay

First, check that contactless payments are set up on your device:

1. Open the Google Wallet app.

2. At the top right, tap your profile picture or Account.

3. Select Tap to pay setup.

4. Check if you're ready to make contactless payments. To tap to pay with Google Wallet:

- Near-field communication (NFC) must be turned on.
- To make a tap-to-pay transaction with a card in your Google Wallet, Google Pay should be set as your default payment app.

Add Card to Google Wallet:

1. Open the Google Wallet app.

2. At the bottom, tap Add to Wallet.

3. Tap Payment card.

4. Any cards you saved to your Google Account are shown.

5. Tap New credit or debit card.

6. To add a card, use your camera or tap Enter details manually.

7. At the bottom, tap Save.

8. Read the Issuer Terms and tap Accept.

9. If you're asked to verify your payment method, choose an option from the list.

Tip: After this step, you should get a message that your card was added and is ready to make contactless payments in stores, online, or in apps where Google Pay is accepted.

NOTE: After you add a card, you might find a small transaction on your account from Google Wallet. This transaction checks that your card and account are valid. This transaction will soon disappear and doesn't affect your balance.
